About

Alison is part of the eDiscovery team at Siskinds and has significant experience with complex electronic document review initiatives. While her practice is primarily focussed with class action matters, she has previous experience with review projects for Public Inquiries, Civil Litigation claims, Competition Bureau supplementary information requests and other investigatory matters.

The eDiscovery Team uses their collective expertise to expand the use of eDiscovery technology and machine active learning in the areas of claims administration, data management and document review.

An avid runner and tennis player, Alison enjoys being active and spending time with family and friends.
