About

Zohra joined Siskinds as an associate in 2023, after summering and articling with the firm. Based in our London office, her practice is focused on representing plaintiffs in consumer protection, securities, health, and institutional abuse litigation.

Zohra graduated from the Queen Mary University of London School of Law in 2021. Throughout law school, she worked as a research associate with the London Health Sciences Centre and Simon Fraser University. Her work focused on using health data to further kidney disease and cancer genomics research.

Zohra is a passionate advocate for human rights, and has volunteered with groups like The Washing Machine Project, World Without Barriers, and the London Abused Women’s Centre. She also enjoys reading, baking bread, and spending time with family. She is a long-time Londoner and an active member of the Muslim community.
